

also dispatched a new Ambassador to South Korea. This may well be the signal for rapid upheavals on the Korean peninsula.

Characteristically, the CIA retains a few options for its moves in South Korea. The Korean peninsula, with North Korea bordering on the Soviet Union, is in a strategic situation for psywar operations to be conducted against the Soviets. It is well known, and was emphasized in press attacks against Park, that he uses "Red Scares" and has provoked border disputes with the North to justify political repression. Given this situation, it is quite possible that the CIA will provoke a serious border dispute with the North, blame it on the "selfish political ambitions of Park," and legitimize his toppling. Additionally, the blame could be pinned on Henry Kissinger and his support for the Park regime.

Cyprus Ambassador's Murder Intended to Discredit Kissinger, Detente

August 26 (IPS) — Close analysis by the IPS Research staff of the circumstances surrounding last Monday's murder of U.S. Ambassador to Cyprus Roger Davies indicates that his assassination was staged.

While 300 to 400 Greek Cypriote demonstrators surrounded the U.S. Embassy in Nicosia, burning cars and madly waving flags to divert attention, two gunmen fired into the Ambassador's office — aiming through shutters yet finding their target.

The bullet that killed Davies was aimed not only at tightening Rockefeller's grip on this strategically important area; it was aimed also at discrediting the foreign policies identified with Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger. The press is using the entire Cyprus flare-up to make Kissinger and his policy of cooperation with the Soviet Union look ridiculous.

As a counter to Kissinger, the bourgeois press has been praising U.S. Defense Secretary James Rodney Schlesinger to the skies. The press is claiming that this RAND Corporation robot is the only man in the Pentagon who can now pull NATO together. The CIA is creating a soft cop-hard cop situation, where Kissinger, the so-called peace maker and Schlesinger, the war maker, are played off one against the other. Schlesinger is coming out the white knight because a strong military figure is vitally necessary to pull together the international NATO military machine, a machine to be used both against the Soviet bloc and the world's working class.

Help From Greece

Karamanlis, Greece's new supposedly progressive Prime Minister is helping the process along, by trying to give his regime a liberal, democratic veneer. Karamanlis is attempting to lure the Soviet Union into approving his rule by lulling the communists into thinking that Greece is anti-NATO. To this end, Karamanlis recently appointed to high government positions two CIA agents who parade as leftists. The installation of these puppets, Davos and Arbouzis, also will help Karamanlis and the CIA to shake out the dead wood from the Greek military and replace it with military men who understand the need to appear liberal.

And In Israel ...

In a related development, Israel dealt Kissinger and his foreign policy another blow. Only a month ago, during the Israeli disengagement talks, Israel was worshipping Kissinger as the "Miracle Worker." Now, under the carefully coordinated plans of the CIA to destroy detente, Israel blamed Kissinger for releasing information that Prime Minister Yitzhat Rabin had accepted an invitation from President Ford to come to Washington in September, before Rabin had formally agreed on the meeting.

Tun Razak, Malaysian 'Kissinger'

August 21 (IPS) — The outcome of Malaysia's nationwide elections set for August 25 will surprise no one as Prime Minister Tun Razak's National Front Party returns the majority of its candidates conveniently unopposed. The resulting consolidation of the country in the hands of a government-military apparatus trained by British Intelligence is the finishing touch making Malaysian "stability" the model for the region.

Testing-Ground

Malaysia has long served as a testing-ground for population control techniques. British infiltration of the Malaysian Communist Party during World War II destroyed the militant trade union movement and launched a classic terrorist campaign as the cover for relocating over one million people into "New Villages," forerunners of the strategic hamlet. Today these villages provide Malaysia's rubber plantations and labor-intensive factories with a source of cheap, docile labor.

Consolidation of Power

A former student of the Special Branch of British Intelligence, Tun Razak, as Deputy Prime Minister in 1969, used provoked anti-Chinese riots to install himself as head of a martial law government. With this leverage, Razak broke up the numerous Chinese and South Asian opposition parties in a drive to give the largely rural Malays "control" of the economy. By equating "Malay advancement" with "national development" and an economic program which parcelled out selective credits to small farmers and businessmen, Razak consolidated a conservative base in the 45 per cent Malay population. That accomplished, Razak was rewarded the franchise in U.S., British and Japanese investments for the region. Selective distribution of funding, jobs and educational opportunities combined with psychological terror aimed at Malaysia's minorities provides the necessary stability for "rationalization of the economy." As the Rockefeller-engineered strangulation of world trade destroys Malaysia's now-prosperous commodity export economy, Razak will be in position to drain greater wealth from his demoralized subjects.

ASEAN: Razak's "Little NATO"

Rockefeller-dominated financial circles have commissioned Razak to establish a zone of peace and neutrality" in the area by promoting him as the Henry Kissinger of the Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN). Under the "left" cover of new diplomatic ties with China, Razak is mediating conflicts between the Thai and the Philippines governments with their Muslim minorities. Simultaneously, he is urging the Philippines and Indonesia to forget their dispute over Sabah and get on with regional cooperation in slave-labor development schemes as ASEAN "partners." Razak has received oil dollars to resolve conflict by establishing the Islamic Development Bank in Kuala Lumpur and related institutions in the Philippines.
