

share the same fate as the 3,000 miners who "agreed" last month to be relocated to the Fos-sur-Mer inferno, a labor-intensive steel complex on the Mediterranean coast.

The miners understand in an intuitive fashion why their livelihood is being destroyed--a result of Rockefeller's first (and now second) Great Oil Hoax. The refusal of their leaders in the PCF and CGT to organize on the basis of this harsh reality has allowed the Giscard government to accelerate its offensive against the entire working class.

In a related development, on Monday, Nov. 4, 15,000 out of the existing 18,000 fuel dealers in France will be shutting their doors to prevent the distribution of fuel primarily designated for domestic heating. Thus, the striking workers will go home, defeated and demoralized, only to face the beginning of winter with no heat.

To ensure the control of the battered working class, Minister of Interior Poniatowski has consolidated an LEAA-style Gestapo reorganization of the French police around a network of block-watchers and small police offices in working class neighborhoods under the guise of "bringing the police closer to the people."

MARIN COMMISSION PLANS LEAA POLICE REORGANIZATION FOR CANADA

MONTREAL, Oct. 31 (IPS)--A source working with the Marin Commission of Inquiry, a federally-ordered Parliamentary investigative commission looking into procedures for citizen complaints and internal discipline, revealed to IPS this week that the Marin Commission will push through police reorganization in Canada along Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA)-CIA lines.

The first step in this process is to collapse local police operations into regional "control" units. To do this, however, the federal government needs public support. The Marin Commission was constituted to verify that such support exists. The support itself is being generated through a series of psychological warfare articles in the press focusing on cases of police brutality and calling for investigation into the way local police are hired and trained.

The Commission currently is sending research teams throughout Canada and to the U.S. cities of Los Angeles, Chicago, and New York to assess their Civilian Review Boards. These cities, which all have been "reorganized" by the LEAA, are to provide Ottawa with the prototype for Canadian reorganization.

Simultaneously, police and justice officials held closed meetings last week in British Columbia and Quebec with the LEAA to coordinate police restructuring continentally.
