

THE DEMISE OF WILBUR MILLS:
WHAT HAPPENED IN LITTLE ROCK?

Dec. 3 (IPS)--The pathetic degeneration of the once powerful Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Wilbur Mills, like the case of Richard Nixon himself, is being obscenely plastered on the front pages of the nation's press for one reason only. The Rockefeller cabal wants everyone to get the message: no one independent of Rockefeller will be allowed to survive.

Those interested in turning this bit of calculated mockery of all legal government and any human self-respect around: it is only necessary to ask a few pointed questions:

- 1) What happened to Wilbur Mills in Little Rock, Arkansas, where he went for a back ailment several years ago and from which he returned, according to many observers, a "changed man?" Who were his doctors? What was his medication?
- 2) What is happening to Mills at Bethesda Naval Hospital?
- 3) Who is Mills' doctor; what are his connections to the Rockefeller cabal; and what drug is it that has "made him feel drunk" since it was prescribed for his heart condition?

ROCKEFELLER FUNDED ANGELA DAVIS BOOK

Dec. 3 (IPS)--The "Arthur Goldberg" book, by which Nelson Rockefeller became known as a man of literary interests, is not the only book of political import connected to the Rockefeller name. IPS learned recently of another and more famous publication. In this case, publication was arranged through the Third Press-Joseph Akpaku Publishing Co., a CIA-run publishing house, funded by the Rockefeller-controlled Ford Foundation, the Rockefeller-controlled New World Foundation, the Rockefeller family's Chase Manhattan Bank, and the CIA's Field Foundation.

The book is If They Come in the Morning, by the heroine of the Communist Party USA, Angela Davis.

Drawing on the above sources, Third Press-Okpaku provided over $100,000 to assure publication and wide publicity at a very critical point in Miss Davis' meteoric rise to fame as a freedom fighter.

New Solidarity has documented how the CIA used the CPUSA's recruitment-drive around Angela's notoriety to flood that organization with agents and take total control of its policies. A smug Ford Foundation spokesman, who was asked a few days ago whether there had been any hesitation in bankrolling If They Come In the Morning, replied readily: "No problem at all."
