

LODERER MAY BE IMPLICATED IN MEXICAN KIDNAP

WIESBADEN, BRD, Dec. 20 (IPS)--Information provided by the office of Eugen Loderer, head of West Germany's largest union, I.G. Metall, opens the possibility that Loderer was implicated in the police kidnapping of a Labor Committee member in Mexico City last week.

Loderer, a member of David Rockefeller's supranational fascist body, the Trilateral Commission, was in Mexico the week of Dec. 14, when Latin American Labor Committee leader Carlos de Hoyos was kidnapped by Echeverria police and held for 59 hours. According to Loderer's office, in the course of his visits with Mexican trade union leaders and the Mexican Minister of Labor, he discussed how to deal with left-wing groups.

A spokesman for I.G. Metall asserted that: "Mr. Loderer spoke on questions such as the danger of left extremists for the free world. For example, the International Metalworkers Federation union members have to deal with such questions as Columbia University in the United States. Columbia is full of Communists and Trotskyists who endanger the freedom of the population and have to be fought against."

It is well known throughout Europe that the Labor Committees were formed at Columbia University and led the Columbia strike in 1968.

When questioned specifically on left-wing activities in Mexico City and Loderer's position on the recent series of terrorist events and robberies there, the I.G. Metall spokesman not only asserted that "We condemn it [left-wing terrorism]," but also volunteered the interesting information that: "But I know that the [Mexican] police have been successful. They arrested the chief of one center of left subversion during the time that Loderer was there."

A subsequent call to the headquarters of the International Metalworkers Federation provoked a thoroughly panicky response. Trilateral Commission member and United Auto Workers head Leonard Woodcock was unavailable for comment on the matter. Over the next few days, the Labor Committees Intelligence staff will attempt to confirm whether or not Loderer was implicated in the kidnapping and whether other Trilateral agents were involved.

MARCHAIS SPEECH EMPHASIZES LEFT TURN, HITS MITTERRAND

Dec. 20 (IPS)--The French Communist Party (PCF) is dumping its nationalist rhetoric as its left turn gathers momentum. In a Paris speech, the PCF's General Secretary George Marchais redefined nationalism within the framework of working-class interests, stating, "The Union of the French people...is not just a union with anybody to do anything....It is the union of French men and women around the working class, which is the decisive force."

The speech, carried in yesterday's issue of the party newspaper L'Humanite, repudiated Marchais' anemic call last June for a union of working-class and capitalist forces to "safeguard French independence."

Marchais also called for "cooperation with all countries, notably with the socialist countries," underlining the PCF's ties to the Soviet bloc.

The Socialist Party, headed by CIA agent Francois Mitterrand, came under heavy fire from Marchais for its endorsement of austerity measures against European workers and its refusal to honor the Common Program with the PCF. "As for us, we want the Left to enter the government to carry through the Common Program," Marchais stated, "to satisfy the needs of the working class and of the people."

In a sharp criticism of Mitterrand's Socialist International cronies, Marchais continued that the Common Program must not ask French workers "to tighten their belts a la [West Germany's Social Democratic Chancellor] Schmidt or [Britain's Labour Party Prime Minister] Wilson, or as [West German Social Democratic Party head] Brandt recently demanded in Paris, without provoking any reaction on the part of the Socialist Party."

But Marchais could not yet bring himself to name the "billionaires" he said were responsible for the present crisis.

PCI FACTION FIGHT BUILDS AGAINST AMENDOLA

Dec. 20 (IPS)--Italian Senator Napoleone Colajanni published a book review Dec. 18 in Unita, the Italian Communist Party newspaper, which can be viewed only as an open factional document against the party clique headed by confessed CIA agent Giorgio Amendola. This is the latest indication that the tremendous ferment around the Labor Committees' campaign against the anti-Soviet Amendola has already spread deep into the party bureaucracy.

PCI Senator Colajanni, reviewing the book Razza Padrona, attacks as a "warped analysis of the Italian economy" the book's thesis that Italy's working-class parties and trade unions should support Rockefeller's Trilateral pal Agnelli, head of Fiat, as a "good capitalist" against the "bad, corrupt" capitalists running the country's partially state-owned firms. This is precisely the theoretical justification for Amendola's open class collaboration with the Agnelli interests, now spewed forth in book
