Labor Parties Demand Public Investigation

Italian Magazine Charges CIA, NATO, W. German Intelligence Run Red Brigades

BONN-ROME, June 14 (NSIPS) — At a joint press conference of the European Labor Party (ELP) and the U.S. Labor Party in Bonn today, ELP federal chairman Helga Zepp and USLP presidential candidate Lyndon H. LaRouche demanded an immediate public investigation into the involvement of West German intelligence services, police authorities and institutions in the emergence and control of terrorist gangs such as the Baader-Meinhof gang. Zepp and LaRouche presented extensive material to the press contained in an ELP white paper titled "New Effective Methods for the Containment of Terrorism." The paper also deals with the American Institute for Policy Studies, the central control point of international terrorist organizations.

At the same time, at a second press conference this afternoon in Rome, the editor of the Italian weekly magazine Tempo Illustrato, Lino Jannuzzi, revealed that the terrorists of the Italian Red Brigades were trained at the Algiers NATO base, probably along with Arab terrorists. Italian Interior Minister Cossiga and the Interior Ministry control the Brigades, Jannuzzi stated before numerous representatives of the international press. Jannuzzi further charged that NATO, the CIA and the West German Secret Service are involved in the terrorist operations and that, for this reason, an official of Cossiga's ministry is presently stationed in West Germany, a fact which Cossiga himself confirmed this past week.

"NATO Trains Red Brigades Killers"

Jannuzzi reported that the Brigades were reconstructed in mid-1975, when professional killers, specially trained in arson at the NATO base, were incorporated into the hard core of the group. He noted that arson has become a virtual daily occurrence in Italy in the past few months.

In the June 20 edition of Tempo Illustrato, Jannuzzi interviews a former secret service general, Sr. Maletti, a political ally of anti-Atlanticist Budget Minister Giulio Andreotti. Maletti reveals in the interview that the Red Brigades were recruited from three camps: anarchists who consider themselves revolutionaries, what he terms agents from East European secret services, primarily Czechs and actually double agents and infiltrators from Atlanticist political intelligence agencies, and agents in the employ of the Italian Interior Ministry.

In another interview in the same issue of Tempo, Socialist Party faction leader Giacomo Mancini links sections of the NATO-led Italian Communist Party and trade union movement to illegal activities of the Italian secret service.

At the Bonn press conference, Zepp announced ELP initiatives toward a public investigation into institutions which the ELP has come in contact with in its own research into the terrorism, including certain West German Federal bureaus, the West German representatives of Interpol and the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the West German intelligence services, and collaborators in various press bureaus and publishing houses.

U.S. Constitutional Crisis

LaRouche emphasized that the revelations by the Labor Parties on both sides of the Atlantic on terrorism and its behind-the-scenes controllers have immediately intersected a political battle between the Ford Administration in the White House, and the President's opposition around Secretary of State Kissinger and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller. The fact that the financiers of the Rockefeller Banks on Wall Street are the originators of terrorism is that much more significant, he said, when one considers that these deployed networks of private political intelligence services, which the financiers control, are engaged in creating the greatest constitutional crisis in the history of the United States, and are in the process of usurping the institutional power of the Ford Administration step by step. The end result of the activation of terror through this network, he said, is the transformation of the United States into a police state.

LaRouche stated that "since the Michigan primary, which Ford won through the mobilization of the U.S. Labor Party, we have hit upon the plan behind this faction fight. We do not support Ford: we are acting in order to prevent the defeat of Ford at the hands of his opponents. We are gathering the strength needed by the White House for the negotiations which, in the context of the present, necessary rapid political turns in foreign and economic policy, must be undertaken. Following the Nairobi conference, the only choice is between debt moratorium and the International Development Bank on the one side and Schacht and genocide on the other."

LaRouche concluded: "In West Germany, meanwhile, we are simultaneously creating the preconditions under which the corresponding anti-Atlanticist, independent forces in parties, industry and trade unions can become active. We are providing them the maneuvering room which they do not have at the moment. For this reason it will depend on the results of the factional struggle in the United States whether the controllers of terrorism in West Germany can be firmly identified and the appropriate changes in the foreign and economic policy in the interests of West Germany undertaken."

Further proof of the ELP's claim that top-level West German circles, including the Federal government, are apparently not entirely ignorant of the background of terrorism appeared when government spokesman Gruenewald and Federal press office chief Boelling hastily and only a few hours before the Zepp-LaRouche press conference announced a government press conference at the same time as the ELP conference. The same trick was successfully employed at the last two press conferences of LaRouche, but this time some journalists appeared anyway. The more awkward the tricks employed here, the more justified the suspicion that the Atlanticist circles in Bonn must have every reason to prevent distribution of ELP exposés. Within the last two weeks, police and certain Social Democratic Party circles in Hamburg and Hannover have attempted to halt the ELP campaign against terrorism with arrests and intimidation.

BRD Command Adopts 'Maginot Line' Policy

by Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr.

WIESBADEN, June 17 (NSIPS) — The official West German government reaction to international exposure of Atlanticist authorship of blind-terrorist and fascist-coup projects is uniform hysterical denial. Since recent Italian officials' disclosures of West Germany-NATO involvement in the Red Brigades' crimes, an iron gag has been clamped down on the mouths of frightened West German officials concerning the terrorist investigations as a whole.

It can not be coincidental that Chancellor Schmidt's key personal representative, Gruenewald, abruptly called an unscheduled full-dress press conference at 2:30 on Monday, June 14. Since this is the second time such a "coincidence" has occurred recently, there is no doubt that this was a calculated effort to black out the pre-announced European Labor Party (ELP) press conference on terrorism scheduled for that same hour.

The following facts clarify that confusion:

First, press conferences on behalf of the Chancellor's office are usually called toward the end of a week, and are convened at between 10:00 in the morning and noon.

Second, excluding major weekend developments, no major political press conferences are held on Monday. Monday is part of the journalists' and parliamentarians' extended weekend, so that only a major breaking development would draw a significant representative of journalists and other relevant persons to a conference convened on that day.

This, incidentally, was one of the advantages the ELP saw in the Monday afternoon date. That avoided any reasonable possibility of a conflict with any major press conference. That is, were the government to schedule an impromptu press conference, it would be done during Monday morning, not afternoon.

Third, there was no major weekend development warranting a press conference on Monday afternoon — rather than Tuesday morning at the earliest. Especially not an impromptu press conference, and, above all, not a full-dress press conference!

Fourth, this was the second time this had occurred in that way — although Gruenewald's previous impromptu press-conference call did not go to the extreme of being full-dress.

Fifth, this curious development coincided with a sudden crack-down against the government's receipt of the massive documentation of fact presented by the ELP. This was emphasized by the fact that the relevant West German government office, on Tuesday morning, represented itself as having secured a detailed briefing on the contents of the ELP press conference.

For the benefit of self-professed skeptics and other donkeys, the ELP intends to prove its analysis.

The next major ELP press conference in Bonn will be convened at 3:00 AM on the first July Sunday that Gruenewald is off to the Australian Outback or some such distant place. The spectacle of poor Mr. Gruenewald scrambling back, arriving, breathless, travel-soiled, and saddle-sore, with a couple of kangaroos peeking out of his pockets, to give an emergency 3:00 AM Sunday press conference on West German policy concerning slim-melioration in Monaco, ought to convince even a donkey that something very curious, indeed, is at work behind the scenes.

The Regime's Folly

Evidently, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and his friends have learned nothing from the "Watergate" affair. The Maginot Line was a foolish idea when it was first conceived, and President Nixon's "stonewalling" against the Kissinger Institute for Policy Studies-led cold coup d'etat was not an improvement in "Maginot Line" design!

Any sensible politician who had come up through the ranks of U.S. big-city constituency politics would know better than Schmidt's government. When one's government and party are being investigated for possible complicity in some scandalous or nastier sort of problem, the intelligent political figure leads the clean-up operation himself.

If we start only from such a point of reference as the "Socialistische Politik" editorial board circles, in fact there are sections of the social-democratic machine which have connections to the Institute for Policy Studies and various nasty countergang and other operations coming out of their trousers at many points. Add the Interpol connections, and so forth, and blatancy of the Baader-Meinhof links to CIA tunnel-digger Andreas Baader and the Heidelberg (Mental) Patients' Collective, and the BRD has some of the smelliest cess-pools currently being maintained.

Add to direct implication of NATO and the BRD in Italian terrorism by leading Italian officials, and official court revelations pouring out in Italy, the recent admissions of West German national Daniel Cohn-Bendit that he was nothing but an agent in the May 1968 affair. Every informed official in the BRD knows that there is a nasty mess to be cleaned up in West Germany, and that notables of the SPD itself will have to be "sacrificed" as indefensible in that process.

As a consequence of the government's current "Maginot Line" policy, when the unstoppable wave of disclosures outflanks and overwhelms the current "stonewalling" postures, a lot of high officials who might have avoided that acute embarrassment are going to see their political hides added to the collection nailed up for public exhibition.
