

International, including the Socialist Party of France and the forces centered around the editorial board of Sozialistische Politik in West Germany, penetrating the bureaucracies of the metalworkers and chemical workers unions in that latter action. Out of this, beginning approximately 1958, emerged the "New Left" project.

The other main stem for emergence of "environmentalism" and terrorism today was the international antinuclear movement led by Bertrand Russell, one of the most evil men who walked the earth during the present century. There is not a terrorist organization today which does not include a Bertrand Russell element of pedigree.

The financial conduits and social-democratic think-tanks plus the Bertrand Russell-linked networks, which created the New Left projects in the United States and Western Europe are the most visible midwives of present-day development of environmentalism and terrorism.

The next crucial contributing element to be noted is Robert Hutchins's project, the "Triple Revolution" statement, the first influential postwar articulation of the "post-industrial-society" doctrine, the predecessor of the Club of Rome.

The third crucial contributing element is the intensified promotion of psychotropic and addictive illegal drugs, the project outlined by Bertrand Russell during the 1920s, and associated more immediately with Aldous Huxley.

The fourth crucial element was the promotion of "sexual liberation" and the step-by-step promotion of pornography through such instruments as Playboy magazine's pioneering in the United States and similar enterprises by periodicals associated with the Einaudi Foundation in Italy. "Group sex" and the promotion of sodomy are as ancient as at least the Dionysian cults, as a technique for transforming adolescent youth into converts to Dionysian cults.

The fifth crucial element was the use of the racial-oppression issue to promote antihumanist particularism, making "skin color" and narrowly defined "cultural heritages" and local community heteronomic "interests" the basis for wrecking the moral fabric of the United States (in particular), by setting "each against all" in this fashion.

The sixth crucial element was the combined promotion of Chomskyian and similar forms of "linguistics" together with various versions of "sensitivity-group therapy" practices, all of which have the central tendency-effect of "brainwashing" the participants.

The seventh crucial element was the "China option." The Maoist "Proletarian cultural revolution" was imported into the United States, initially by being tacked onto and superseding early 1960s enthusiasm for the Cuban Revolution. This version of Maoism, itself a degraded "back to nature" Dionysian cult, served as the matrix of reference for "reprogramming" the quasi-Marxist New Left into a straight Dionysian-cult ferment, using "Marxist" labels with new content.

The key strategic elements of the transition from "New Left" ferment into "environmentalism" and terrorism were the breaking of the de Gaulle government in France, and the coordinated weakening of the forces around Konrad Adenauer in Germany. Through the pro-oligarchist forces around Franz-Josef Strauss in Bavaria, the "Volkspartei" anti-Adenauer CDU faction around Helmut Kohl during the mid-1960s, and the transition to the Brandt government through the intermediary role of the "Grand Coalition," the de Gaulle-Adenauer force of commitment to global scientific and technological progress was significantly wrecked, with the allies of Brandt, Strauss and contaminated, Mont Pelerin Society-linked elements within the FDP inclusively key to the process.

A similar process was enacted in Italy. Despite the conflicts between the Christian-Democracy and

Sen. Percy Blocking Eradication

Following a Sept. 2 article in the Washington Post reporting that Colombian marijuana cultivation has increased from 100,000 to a staggering 300,000 acres, the U.S. Labor Party interviewed a spokesman from the office of the Senior Advisor and Director for International Drug Control Matters of the State Department. The interview, made available to the Executive Intelligence Review, is printed below.

Going for $50,000 per ton, the "cash crop" of 120,000 tons of "high quality" marijuana will net the City of London's banking circles that run the international drug trade a cool $6 billion at wholesale. On the streets of American cities, the marijuana will be sold for anywhere from $35 to $60 billion. Senator Charles Percy (R-Ill), in collaboration with the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML), is leading U.S. efforts to legitimize this massive drug trade.

Q: Did you get a chance to read Saturday's Washington Post article on the Colombian drug situation and the fact that there are 120,000 tons of marijuana ready to be picked by the end of this month?

A: No, I didn't see the article, but I'll make a point of doing so.

Q: Has there been any discussion in your office as to what is going to be done to stop the marijuana crop from being harvested and brought into the U.S.?

Communist Party in Italy, Italy under the tradition of De Gasperi and Pope Pius XII was ruled on the basis of a balance of combined majority social forces among otherwise-opposed supporters of the papacy and the protechnology factions of the PCI and its industrial and agricultural-cooperative base. Pope Paul VI, Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, and the state-industry sector in Italy are the social-political base for that current in the Christian Democracy, while the forces grouped around Cossutta, Berlinguer and other PCI factional adversaries of Amendola and Napolitano are the continuation of that same combination in the PCI.

In Italy, the oligarchist factional forces are a combination of the political heirs of Benedetto Croce and the so-called "Black nobility." These control the Agnelli faction of the Christian-Democracy, the Lombardi-Craxi faction of the Socialist Party—allied to the Brandt faction internationally and the Amendola-Napolitano factions in the PCI. They also control the political rag-tag of Italian politics, the Liberal Party, the Trotskyist-Maoist ultraleft, and the "extreme right."

In the Arab sector, British and Israeli intelligence jointly control such key forces as the Iraq-resident Imam of the Shiite faction of Islam, partially through the British intelligence front known as the Bahai cult, and also control various elements of the Palestinian movements.

2. International Drug Traffic

The British monarchy has controlled the international illegal-drug traffic since the close of the 18th century, at the time the British East India Company promoted the export of opium from India into China. The key banks of Shanghai, Hong Kong and Singapore have been primarily based on illegal-drug revenues from the period preceding the "Opium Wars" to the present day. This—including the same banking houses—represents what is known as the "Golden Triangle" of international opium and heroin traffic down to the present moment. The present government of Peking is directly complicit with the British monarchy in production and distribution of the opium and opium derivatives from the "Golden Triangle" at this moment. The old banking houses associated with Shanghai, Hong Kong, and Singapore are the immediate financial conduits for that side of international illegal-drug revenues at the present time.

Illegal-drug traffic's development inside the United States bears directly on the problem of counter-terrorist intelligence and operations at this moment.

Until the late 1920s, according to official U.S. government files, there was no illegal-drug traffic problem in the U.S.A. There had been addiction arising out of misuse of opiates for therapeutic purposes, and some small-scale illegal supplying of opiates to addicts, but the "drug problem" as we currently define it originated in the United States during the last phase of Prohibition. The same networks used to import illegal scotch whisky into the United States during Prohibition have continued the illegal-drug importing down to the present date.

Consequently, a brief outline of Prohibition operations brings us quickly dead on target in locating the responsables for the present-day illegal-drug traffic. The same financial institutions—in Canada, the British West Indies, and the "Golden Triangle"—which conduit tens of billions of dollars of revenues annually from international illegal-drug traffic into the United States are the same financial institutions which control the "environmentalists" and terrorists, and which control the private arms firms key in supplying weapons to terrorists.

The import of illegal whisky into the United States began with a contract negotiated between Arnold Rothstein and representatives of the British govern-

Of London's Drug Harvest

A: No, not really, our biggest concern has been with the heroin problem.

Q: As I discussed with you last week, the USLP is still planning to present the U.S. Congress and the Colombian government with a marijuana extermination plan modeled on the Mexican paraquat spraying program.

A: That's excellent—but you know, our hands have been tied on this matter. After having set up excellent working relations with the Mexicans on their drug eradication program, extreme pressure has been put on the Congress to stop our aiding them in their paraquat program.

In fact, you know that NORML has taken us to court on the use of paraquat and got a favorable decision from Judge Waddy to enjoin our assistance program to the Mexican government.

Q: Who specifically in Congress is behind this pressure on the State Department to not give aid to paraquat spraying programs?

A: Senator Percy. Both he and NORML have put on tremendous pressure.

Q: Sen. Percy has been responsible for the amendment to the Foreign Military Assistance Bill which prohibits any country from using this money to buy paraquat or any other "harmful" herbicide to use for their eradication programs.

A: Yes, in fact Percy's aim was to kill the whole spraying program.
