

'Ronald Reagan is not morally fit for re-election'

Printed here is the complete text of a more-than-1-million copy mass leaflet that began to be distributed at 8 A.M. on April 6 throughout the United States. The LaRouche Campaign decided to release the leaflet after more than three months of refusal by the Reagan administration to allow Democratic presidential candidate Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. Secret Service protection.

April 6—Democratic Presidential candidate Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. issued the following statement:

"If President Reagan is somehow mysteriously misinformed about the treachery which has been involved in denying me Secret Service protection, I will retract the attack on him personally, but not the attack on the palace guard which has kept that information from him.

"This I will do if he will call me and tell me that he was ignorant of the actions which have been taken by Secret Service and the Treasury Department to deprive me of physical protection. But to the best of our knowledge, he has known the problem exists, and has refused to do anything about it.

"This is an immoral act."

March 7—Democratic presidential candidate Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. lives at a level of risk of assassination greater than any other presidential candidate but Ronald Reagan himself. Moreover, candidate LaRouche, for three years, has not only maintained a cooperative attitude toward the President, but has exerted his resources consistently in the effort to defend the President's life against sundry threats.

Candidate LaRouche has bent over backwards, to provide the President every conceivable opportunity to do the moral thing in the matter of Secret Service cooperation. With a public exhibition of debased cynicism, the President has turned his back on the very life of LaRouche and his wife, much as the same President has turned his back on his most solemn promises, and has sold out his longstanding friends for imagined favors from his political adversaries.

Fact: Ronald Reagan's chief campaign promise for years was a solemn promise to his supporters, never to allow Henry Kissinger again to enter government. It was that promise, more than anything else, which enabled Ronald Reagan to secure the 1980 Republican nomination, and become President. How well has the President kept that solemn promise?

Fact: We have watched, one by one, the President's loyal supporters being replaced by Kissinger's cronies and accomplices. They have been either pushed out of the administration, or pushed off into positions distant from the decision-making process, always in favor of Kissinger's accomplices and supporters.

Fact: It is explained that the President has betrayed his promises for the sake of buying the support of Kissinger's friends for his 1984 re-election campaign.

Fact: A man who would betray his promises for the sake of such political bribes should be denied the prize for which he betrays his solemn promises, betrays his friends, and betrays the welfare of the nation.

LaRouche vows that Ronald Reagan shall lose the November 1984 election.

You have only two choices: a Hart-Mondale ticket in November, or a LaRouche administration in January 1985. There will never be a second Reagan administration. Ronald Reagan will lose in November. As of 1700 hours, March 7, 1984, Ronald Reagan has made the decision, that he was not morally qualified to be re-elected. For that reason, Ronald Reagan will assuredly lose the November election.

You ask, does LaRouche have the power to guarantee that Ronald Reagan will lose the November election. The answer is a definite "yes."

Suppose LaRouche is killed? LaRouche's "bloody shirt" will hang on Ronald Reagan's door; the voters—even those who dislike LaRouche—will turn away from Ronald Reagan in disgust. Ronald Reagan will lose as President Johnson had the sense to resign from the re-election campaign in the Spring of 1968.

Suppose LaRouche is not killed? The voters will not vote for or against Ronald Reagan; they will vote for or against Henry A. Kissinger. The solemn promise of Ronald Reagan, never to allow Kissinger in his government, will be recited over and over in every city, town and neighborhood of this nation. The President's old friends will turn from him in disgust—as they should, and the President's adversaries, with whom he has made corrupt "deals," will laugh at Ronald Reagan and throw his hopes of a second term into the rubbish pile.

Don't say that Ronald Reagan is "the lesser evil." Nothing within imagination could be more evil than a President who is a mere puppet of Henry A. Kissinger. On the basis of the evidence in hand as of 1700 hours, March 7, 1984, we have nothing worth re-electing in the White House. The President's personal morality has been put to an acid test, and the President has failed that simple test of his personal morality.
