

assaults against Serbian artillery positions and supply lines. I strongly disapproved against any deployment of American ground forces in Bosnia.

I'm very glad that the Clinton administration has apparently in principle adopted a policy of lifting the arms embargo and air attacks against Serbia. I am outraged at the arrogant obstructionism by Great Britain and France against that U.S. policy. I strongly urge President Clinton to proceed with his correct policy no matter what diplomatic trickery may be put forward by this renovated Entente Cordiale. Obviously this new Entente Cordiale is determined to block any breakout of the United States out of the geopolitical "Procrustean Bed" of Versailles/Trianon/Yalta.

Never was the strategic factor of time so important as now. Action or non-action in the next two weeks can have the most dramatic consequences. I think within the next two weeks the United States must proceed with a military intervention against Serbia. Were there no U.S. intervention, which I sincerely hope will not happen, the military situation for the Bosnia forces would likely be such that there is no chance of ever rolling back Serbian conquests in Bosnia.

Equally important is that we must assume that already in the month of June the political and economic crisis in Russia is going to dramatically escalate again. Under these circumstances a U.S. military intervention in Bosnia would become increasingly difficult, if not impossible. In addition, with the Russian crisis worsening further, world public opinion is likely to turn away from Bosnia.

It must be understood that if there is no U.S. military intervention against Serbia in the time frame indicated, a "Pandora's Box" of armed conflicts all over the globe will open up in the near-term. Inaction of the West will signify internationally that war of aggression and seizing of territory by force is again an acceptable instrument of international relations. In many parts of the world, there are latent conflicts which so far have been constrained by the perception that the West, and in particular the United States, will not tolerate wars of aggression. Inaction against Serbia would signify that the West's proclaimed principles of international law are not to be taken seriously any more. The West, and in particular the United States, would appear to be a "paper tiger."

I'm especially concerned about the long-range effect of western inaction in Bosnia in the Islamic world. Were the West to tolerate the destruction of the Bosnian state and the mass slaughter and rape of its citizenry, this is likely to become the trigger of a new wave of Islamic anti-western feeling that goes well beyond anything we have seen so far. It would not be a cheap piece of anti-western propaganda, but it would address the truth of western complicity in the slaughter of an Islamic people on the European continent.

All of these factors necessitate that the United States act now. And as a European, I say that the United States should act unilaterally and ignore European obstructionism, cowardice, and diplomatic trickery.

Suall a target of California spy probe

by Jeffrey Steinberg

Irwin Suall, the director of the Fact-Finding Division of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith (ADL), is a prime target of the San Francisco District Attorney's Office, whose investigators are probing a nationwide spy ring that stole classified government data and passed it to the governments of South Africa and Israel.

A source close to the six-month-old investigation of the ADL, which has turned up evidence of ADL illegal surveillance and data gathering on over 950 political groups and at least 20,000 American citizens, told the San Francisco Examiner on May 11: "Look at the top, at the organizational setup, at the fact finders." The source named Suall as a leading target of the probe, which is expected to be concluded with indictments by mid-June.

In fact, on April 30, Suall hired Bay Area lawyer Charles Breyer to represent him. The move came immediately after police released an inventory of documents seized in their April 8, 1993 raids on the San Francisco and Los Angeles ADL offices. Among those seized records were numerous memos to and from Suall and the ADL's local San Francisco spy, Roy Bullock, as well as extensive financial records dealing with ADL "fact-finding" expenses.

The San Francisco spy scandal is not the first time that Suall has been caught up in illegal intrigues. In March 1986, Suall led an ADL effort to blame American political figure Lyndon LaRouche for the Feb. 28, 1986 assassination of Sweden's Prime Minister Olof Palme. Working with NBC producer Patricia Lynch, Suall stirred up media smears against LaRouche and tried to fuel a Swedish police probe of a nonexistent "LaRouche angle" on the Palme killing.

Years later, a former top official of the East German secret police agency, the Stasi, revealed that the "LaRouche killed Palme" story had been hatched in East Berlin and been foisted on gullible police and media by East German agents of influence in the West. Although Suall was never named by the former East German spy, it was the ADL Fact-Finding Division that joined wholeheartedly with the Stasi and with top Soviet KGB officials in perpetrating the fraud and cover-up of the Palme assassination, which to this day remains unsolved.

Gerard returns to face indictment

On May 6, in a surprise development, former San Francisco police officer Tom Gerard, a central player in the early phase of the district attorney's probe, returned from the Philippines, where he had taken refuge last November following an FBI interrogation about the passing of FBI and police files to the South African government.

Initially, the San Francisco police investigation had centered around Gerard's relationship to Roy Bullock, a 40-year ADL undercover operator who infiltrated Arab-American groups, homosexual activist circles, and radical right-wing groups for the ADL. Bullock and Gerard received $16,000 from South Africa for spying on anti-apartheid groups in the United States, and Bullock frequently called upon Gerard to illegally snatch documents from police and other government data bases. As Assistant District Attorney John Dwyer delved deeper into the scandal, he refocused his probe at the ADL, which he now says is at the center of a nationwide illegal spy network. District Attorney Arlo Smith told reporters last month that Bullock is one of at least half a dozen full-time ADL spies working in different parts of the country, illegally obtaining information from police and spying on activists believed to oppose the policies of the Israeli and South African regimes.

Gerard, who had worked for three years for the CIA in the early 1980s, told police and reporters after his May 6 return to San Francisco that he feared for his life in the Philippines. He was arrested at the San Francisco International Airport and released the next day on $20,000 bail. On May 12, he was arraigned and charged with five California state felony counts relating to the theft of classified government data.

In the indictment, Bullock is also cited for possession of 1,300 California Department of Motor Vehicle records. Bullock is expected to be indicted along with other ADL officials in June.

Gerard is also being investigated by the FBI for his possession of classified CIA documents dealing with agency activities in Central America during the height of the Contra efforts.

The Pollard angle

Another angle on the spy probe is the Jonathan Jay Pollard affair, which could be reopened on the basis of the West Coast investigation. According to an article in the May 11 Village Voice by Robert Friedman, Jonathan Pollard, the convicted Israeli-Soviet spy, has written recently to friends that a prominent official of the ADL was key to his spy activities. One likely suspect is Mira Lansky Boland, Irwin Suall's Washington, D.C. "fact finder." A former graduate school classmate and friend of Pollard's, Lansky Boland worked for the CIA and the Pentagon's Office of Net Assessments before going to work for the ADL in late 1982.

In May 1991, Lansky Boland escorted a group of 11 police officers to Israel on an eight-day all-expenses-paid junket. Gerard was one of those who traveled with her, in what another participant described as a "payback for services already rendered" to the ADL.

The psychiatric shock troops behind Waco

by Scott Thompson and Bruce Director

At her April 19 press conference held hours after the incineration of 86 members of the Branch Davidians, through the actions of the FBI Hostage Rescue Team, Attorney General Janet Reno repeatedly stressed that the choice of timing and the method behind the raid had all been worked out in consultation with "experts." In testimony before the House Judiciary Committee, FBI Director William Sessions reported that the two most important "experts" were long-time Bureau consultants, forensic psychiatrist Dr. Park Elliot Dietz and psycholinguist Dr. Murray Miron.

These two "experts" work with the FBI's National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime (NCAVC) at Quantico, Virginia, especially the NCAVC's Behavioral Sciences Unit (BSU) headed by FBI Special Agent John E. Douglas and a field action arm spun off the BSU known as the Investigative Support Unit. The FBI also drew upon an array of lesser cult "experts," including notably the "kidnap-for-hire" Cult Awareness Network, which was created out of the CIA "mind control" experiments under the influence of MK-Ultra participant Dr. Louis Jolyon West.

Dr. Dietz protests

According to FBI Director William Sessions's testimony, the most important "expert" upon whom the Bureau relied was Dr. Park Elliot Dietz. Dr. Dietz told an interviewer that he arrived at the command center near the Branch Davidian compound only 24 hours behind the FBI, and that he remained there for two days to help set up the negotiations between the Branch Davidians and personnel from the NCAVC's Special Operations and Research Unit. San Antonio Special Agent in Charge Jeff Jamarr, who had responsibility for the command center, testified that Dietz had particularly pushed the allegation that there was "child abuse," and that every passing day increased the risk to the children. This allegation especially played on susceptibilities of Attorney General Janet Reno.

Dietz has ceased giving interviews on his role to the press, because he maintains that the April 25 Sunday Times of London distorted what he told them. Dietz refuses even to clarify what the distortions were. His colleague, Dr. Murray Miron, who was also interviewed for the Times article, be-
