NAWAPA To Develop U.S., South America, Asia

Greetings from the Pacific Northwest. My name is Dave Christie. I'll be the Congressional candidate here in Washington State, as part of a nationwide slate of six LaRouche Democrats, restoring the virtues of our Republic, and launching an economic recovery, now. We will not wait around until 2012: We won't have a country by then.

We are situated here in Washington State, less than 500 miles from the jewel of the North American Water and Power Alliance (NAWAPA), the driver for the economic recovery for the next generation. The NAWAPA system, in the Sawtooth Mountain pump system, over in the Sawtooth Mountains of Idaho, is going to radically transform this region: The project will require the construction of 23 dams, 26 gigawatts of power for the pumping facilities. The industrial capabilities that now lie latent in nearby Seattle and Tacoma will be re-enlivened with this development in the Sawtooth system.

However, it's not just this region which will be transformed: This region now will become reintegrated with an international perspective. Behind us, we see some of what the international perspective is, now, which is unfortunately shipping containers coming in, full of goods from China and Asia, however, leaving empty, because there's nothing to send them—except for Starbucks coffee. Anyway, we will be sending them back with the capital goods, and related equipment, for the development of Asia as a whole, in the reindustrialization policy that will be launched and fed into the NAWAPA system, here in this region. That is the vision of what Washington can be transformed into in this manner.

And, as we look south, all the way through our partners along this strategic corridor south to San Francisco, California, on through Mexico, we can even look south to South America, through the Darién Gap, and we can see the whole West Coast integrated, all the way through our partners in British Columbia, ending the British colonial policy put in place by Adam Smith, propagandized in such tracts as The Wealth of Nations from 1776. And we can extend this development through Alaska, on through the Bering Strait, through Eurasia. And that is what this region can be radically transformed to do.

So, I ask you to join with me, and the five other LaRouche Democrats, to make this happen, now! We're not going to wait around, till the magic moment in 2012, when we're sitting in the Congress. Work with us now, to dump our poor, insane President, with his narcissist complex; throw him out. Bring back Glass-Steagall, kick the British out with their Wall Street bail-out process. Make sure our states and cities do not have to make the bone-cutting austerity policies that they're doing now: I know the city councils and the governors do not like these kinds of cuts—other than this psycho Schwarzenegger, down in California.

So, join with us, now: We're not waiting for 2012. These candidates, this slate, represents the fight, now.
