EIR

From the Editor

Don't think of the Libor fraud as a scandal, but as a marker for the end of the mass-murderous post-1971 system, commented Lyndon LaRouche in the wake of the eruption of evidence of the criminal conspiracy to fix that interest rate, on which the fate of hundreds of localities around the world has depended. In this issue of EIR, you will get LaRouche's unique perspective on the future which this development portends—as long as patriots fight to achieve it.

In his two major articles for this issue, "The Doom of the Libor Rate: The End of an Imperial System," and "Glass-Steagall Understood: The Space in Which To Live," LaRouche focuses on the scientific principles and the concept of man which are required to meet the challenges of the future, including those arising from changes in our galaxy. The first of these articles is complemented by our exposition of the actual content of the Libor-rigging. Politically, it portends the political destruction of the Obama Administration, starting with the crimes of Treasury Secretary Geithner. Economically, the rigging has literally threatened the lives of millions through its deliberate looting.

Make sure you read all the boxes—they provide some spice.

The implementation of Glass-Steagall is crucial to ending the Libor crime: see our report on the progress of H.R. 1489. After Glass-Steagall, the U.S. will then have to go to a credit system and a new national banking system. We pick up from our article in the June 22 issue on the Second National Bank, which British traitor Andrew Jackson sought to destroy, with a sequel on Biddle's Bank which shows you how a previous generation of Americans actually did reject monetarism, and applied credit for development.

The danger of war, of course, has not gone away, as you will read in our article on the provocations in Syria—and an exclusive interview exposing the media lies on what's happening in that besieged nation. And if you wonder how our military could be led into another no-win adventure, you need only read our military correspondent Carl Osgood's first hand report on this year's Unified Guest wargame at the Army War College.

As we go to press, another major implosion of the criminal financial system is occurring, around the exposure of HSBC's record of drug-money laundering. EIR has been on top of this Dope, Inc. story for decades—see our unique coverage next issue.
