

Stop the Empire's War

by Nancy Spannaus, Editor

Nov. 7—On the eve of the U.S. Presidential elections, Lyndon LaRouche took the podium at the National Press Club in the nation's capital, to define the actual issues at stake from his own unique standpoint—the standpoint of the future. For that reason, the contents of LaRouche's address, along with that of EIR's Jeffrey Steinberg, represent the crucial orientation for the political battles that must be fought and won after election day. Upon LaRouche's instruction, we have shaped this entire issue of EIR with that in mind, selecting only a very few additional elements of the strategic picture which directly expand upon LaRouche's major message: The United States must free itself from control by the British Empire, which, with its Saudi accomplices, is leading us, and the world, into extinction by nuclear war, or other means.

With Barack Obama's declared victory in the elections, the contents of LaRouche's address become even more urgent.

First, the United States remains in the power of a known British puppet who is carrying out a policy of provocation, along with the Saudi monarchy, that is leading directly to a thermonuclear confrontation with Russia and China. If that confrontation is not stopped, there is little doubt that it will lead to the virtual obliteration of civilization on this planet.

Second, the proven complicity of Barack Obama in the British-Saudi operation which carried out the 9/11 attacks of 2001 and 2012, provides the basis for his immediate impeachment, and removal from office, as the most reliable pathway to avoiding the horror of general war. The evidence put on the table in documentary form by EIR editor Steinberg—and there is much more besides—must provide the grist for the Congressional investigations into the Benghazi atrocity which are already scheduled for this month. The impeachment of Obama for his offenses against the Constitution, which should have been initiated years ago, must finally begin.

It can be truly said that if a more significant minority of the American population had been exposed to, and assimilated, the presentation and documentation which LaRouche and Steinberg offered at the Nov. 2 press conference, the outcome of the election could have been different. The damning evidence of the Obama Administration's collusion with the British-Saudi orchestration of mass-murderous attacks on the United States is overwhelming, and conclusive. Would a majority still have voted for a mass murderer for President if they had understood the real story of 9/11 One and Two?

The most crucial task of patriots, then, at this point, is to assimilate the message of that press conference and spread it far and wide. Don't get distracted by individual "issues" which will erupt. Whether this nation and the planet have a future or not, depends upon facing the reality of the British-Saudi collusion which is driving the world toward war. Electoral games are over—it's time for the real fight.
