

EDITORIAL

Message for the New Year

by Helga Zepp-LaRouche

Dec. 31—This coming year is going to be one in which a lot of very crucial strategic issues will come to a head, where humanity is being confronted with choosing a path—a path to either solutions which will bring mankind into a New Paradigm, or a path to Hell. That is why I want to officially declare 2022 the year of my late husband, Lyndon LaRouche, because it is his 100th birthday.

There is no more adequate way to celebrate this great man and the incredible richness of the works he had produced, than to declare 2022 the “Year of Lyndon LaRouche.” I already can promise that we will conduct many meetings, conferences, and seminars. We will publish the second volume of his collected works—that is, by the LaRouche Legacy Foundation. We will do everything possible so that the solutions that Lyndon LaRouche offered to the strategic situation, to the economic crisis, to the cultural crisis; that these solutions will be on the table for every responsible government and parliament around the world to consider. I think this will be a very fruitful endeavor, so I invite all of you to join with us in the celebration of Lyndon LaRouche for the entire year.