

connected with former Sen. J.W. Fulbright and former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford. The power of the "Jewish Lobby" in fact reflects the enormous financial power of the New York and London banks and the liberal Eastern press like the New York Times and the Lazard Freres-owned Washington Post and Newsweek.

The exposé that appeared in the advertisement in the New York Times this week by the American Palestine Committee, accusing Dayan of having personally ordered the bombing of the USS Liberty by Israeli forces during the 1967 war, reveals only the surface of an important story. Although Dayan in fact did knowingly order the attack on the Liberty, the background is this: the Liberty, a U.S. intelligence-gathering vessel, had learned that Dayan had just ordered the activation of Israeli nuclear weapons and had issued preliminary instructions targeting Cairo, the Aswan Dam, and Egyptian troop concentrations for atomic attack. The attack on the Liberty was meant to eliminate evidence of this plan — but it did not succeed, and such records exist.

In Israel, at present, the Dayan forces have made a fool of Prime Minister Menachem Begin. Begin, who is by no means of the Dayan circle, has been sucked into playing Dayan's game and has been led to believe his

Anwar Sadat: Israeli Agent

While presuming to be a defender of the Egyptian nation against "Zionism," Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has been a pliant tool of exactly those same New York-based banking interests that control Moshe Dayan and a significant related wing of Israeli politics and military intelligence.

Sadat's earliest claim to fame was the contact man between the Nasser-led "Free Officers" and the Muslim Brotherhood, an organization to which Sadat himself belonged in the post-World War II period in which the Brotherhood increasingly became a repository for the operatives of the Otto Skorzeny-controlled Nazi intelligence services. Sadat was the most pro-terrorist member of the "Free Officers," in factional distinction to the "industrial capitalist"-oriented faction around Nasser himself.

In the early 1950s, in his book Revolt on the Nile, Sadat longingly eulogized Adolf Hitler.

Serving in the 1950s to late 1960s period in an "advisory" capacity to Nasser for many issues — being, for example, a prime exponent of the disastrous Yemen operation which strategically wrecked Egyptian capabilities — Sadat was chosen by U.S.-linked Egyptian military-intelligence as Nasser's most likely successor, a choice which was foisted on the demoralized Nasser.

Since that time, Sadat has opened the door wide to the Rockefeller-Lazard-controlled International Monetary Fund. His "Open Door" policy has opened Egypt only to foreign speculative banking arrangements and has left the country in disastrous economic shape.

Sadat has opened Egyptian intelligence wide to U.S. National Security Council penetration while stripping his country's military defense capabilities bare through his Kissinger-ordered anti-Soviet policies.

By his conspiratorial collusion with Kissinger, Dayan, and corrupt Saudi Arabian networks in 1973, Sadat helped coordinate the 1973 Arab-Israeli war and ensuing oil hoax. The astronomical rise in the price of oil has been used to factional advantage by Chase, Lazard, and allied New York banking interests to impose Eurodollar and related financial bubble swindles on the world economic system.

The past two years' Sadat dossier exposes his return with those New York-linked circles who tightly control him.

* Signs Kissinger-orchestrated Sinai Two agreement in September, 1975, activating the genocidal war in Lebanon.

* In March 1976, holds meetings with David Rockefeller, who conveys to him Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres' promise not to move militarily against Sadat if he collaborates with U.S.-Israeli networks. Sadat receives promise of $250 million loan in return for playing the game.

* In late 1976, Sadat works out austerity measures with the IMF, holds early 1977 meetings with Edward Levi, ex-U.S. Attorney General and 1940s defender of the Standard Oil-I.G. Farben cartel, and J. Paul Austin, head of Coca Cola and key Carter-controller on the Trilateral Commission. Soon after, Sadat announces imposition of food subsidy cutbacks, triggers major national riots, and follows this up with sweeping internal reorganization of domestic security forces, large-scale crackdown against the Egyptian left, and barely covert alliance with Egyptian right-wing forces funded by private Rockefeller-connected Saudi networks.

* In mid-May 1977, Sadat plans invasion of Libya. Consults to this end with New York Senator Jacob Javits, "the Senator from Chase Manhattan," who informs Sadat in a mid-July visit to Egypt, that Lazard Freres has declared "Open Season" against the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). The Javits meeting follows closely on heels of visit to Egypt by Kamal Adham, adviser to Saudi King Khaled and prime architect of Rockefeller-linked Saudi-Egypt axis formed during and after 1973 war. In mid-July, Sadat orders invasion of Libya, key moment in Lazard's "Bust OPEC" strategy.

* In early August 1977, Sadat secretly meets with Austin again, days before Vance arrival in Egypt. On Vance's arrival, Sadat calls for "working group" proposal, destabilizing various Arab, European, and U.S. schemes for an overall peace accord.
