

Christianity that we report, with absolute certainty that the cited Jesuits' conceptions are not Christian, but are a nominal, counterfeit Christianity based in the ontological and cultist charismatic conceptions of both the Isis cult and of what St. John describes as the "Whore of Babylon." Theirs is the doctrine of the "fallen angel," Satan, the semitic name for Dionysus.

The Aquarians

The characteristic doctrine of the satanic cults over the millennia has been centered around what is most rigorously termed "the oligarchic model," and known during the middle of the 4th century B.C. as the "Persian model."

The function of the cults, including the cults of Dionysos, Apollo, and Isis, as well as of the Mesopotamian magicians, is to degrade mankind into a lunatic condition in which the oligarchists' slaves will not only accept, but will work to bring into being the "oligarchical model." That model is a "zero technological growth" form of antiurban society, combining what popular opinion would identify with rule by allied feudal and rentier-financier forces, mixed with the sodomic lunacies of Aldous Huxley's Brave New World.

Aquarius is but a new name for Satanism, overlapping the Liberation Theology of the Jesuits.

This problem is not only unoriginal in the span of human history. It is not original to this century. The last expression we had of this, until now, was Nazi Germany.

The sort of lunacy which Nazism represented in practice could not be effected by sane people. The Odin and Thule cults are exemplary of the "Aquarian" ideology which permeated the Nazis generally. To transform the United States into a fascist horror, the Jesuits and their Anglican partners had to eliminate the last efficient vestige of the American dedication to scientific and technological progress from the controlling institutions of society.

So, typified by the conceptions of the allies, H.G. Wells and Teilhard de Chardin, the one-worlder Aquarians destroyed first much of the youth of the United States—through the Chardinesque-Huxley "entry point" of drugs, and used the drug-destroyed minds of a youth lured into pornography, disco orgies, and homosexual cultisms, into "post industrial society" antitechnology, hooligan cults, and thence into lurid "sensitivity" cults, "charismatic" forms of satanism, often in the name of Christianity.

The decay of the United States' leading circles is so bad that a mentally unbalanced Carter is tolerated as nominal President, and that a wholesale assault on the very idea of Reason appears almost unopposed in those strata.

Either we end this Jesuit-Anglican lunacy, or we shall not long survive.

Clearinghouse: the 'new age' in Congress

Dozens of Senators and Congressmen are members. Hundreds have attended its meetings. And it is one of the most influential institutions on Capitol Hill, not only shaping specific pieces of legislation, but shaping the very way America's legislators view the world.

This is the Congressional Clearinghouse on the Future, an "Aquarian Conspiracy" organization that, along with the Congressional Research Service, is efficiently brainwashing U.S. lawmakers into supporting the Club's zero growth perspective.

The Congressional Clearinghouse specializes in "images of the future," or "futurology." Its staff and lecturers feature a number of science fiction writers of notoriety—Isaac Asimov, Ray Bradbury, Hal Clement—and such oracles of "a new dark age" as Barbara Tuchman (A Distant Mirror), Marilyn Ferguson (The Aquarian Conspiracy), and Alvin Toffler (Future Shock, The Third Wave). They have in common a disbelief in the arguments of science, and a hatred for economic growth and scientific progress, which their "images of the future" seek to eradicate from the minds of Congressmen.

Says Clearinghouse director Ann Cheatham, describing the transformation of elected officials into mystics, "in some way I don't even understand, we have addressed a deep need in Congress to speak to people's sense of frustration and pain, to the awareness that you don't have to pretend you know exactly what to do, because nobody knows what to do right now."

Amid the worst crisis in the history of the nation, over 200 members of the House and Senate, through the seminars, dinners, newsletters, and discussion groups of the Clearinghouse, are now celebrating the fact that they "don't know what to do right now." The crux of the process, however, is that Clearinghouse personnel quickly assume the role of telling Congressmen what to do.

"It is impossible to measure what has happened to the members of the House and Senate who have attended these monthly dinners," says Congressman Charles Rose (D-NC), "but surely we are not the same as we were before we heard them."

Subtly, the Clearinghouse convinces its Congressmen that they themselves have developed the new "dark age" perspective the Clearinghouse was created to promote. "The key to adaptation is people's perception of reality," reports Arnold Brown, a staffer who developed a program by which Clearinghouse participants arrive at "consensus" decisions favoring precisely what the Club of Rome proposes. "There is no reality, just perceptions. I developed the TEAM approach for the Clearinghouse. TEAM starts from the view that most people fear change—even when it's good. It upsets them and threatens them, because they have to change their view of themselves and the way they relate to the world. TEAM tries to get people to view ideas for change and information as things they thought up themselves. At the Clearinghouse, we get people together from all over Capitol Hill, and help them perceive information they're given as their information, and upcoming changes as their changes. Information becomes non-threatening to them and they believe they have a stake in it."

The Congressional Clearinghouse was created in 1976 by Aurelio Peccei's Club of Rome. Director Ann Cheatham is one of 150 select members of the U.S. Association of the Club of Rome, and she and her entire staff are also members of the World Futures Society.

The World Futures Society is an umbrella association for "futurist" organizations around the nation. These organizations are designed for "raising new states of consciousness" enabling persons to "see new dimensions" in reality. Any "dimension" will do, if it disposes one to passively accept stagnation and decay, death and economic disintegration. The organization is blunt about this objective. Their conference this July in Toronto features panel discussions under the titles, "Death and Dying" and "Friendly Fascism."

The Congressional Clearinghouse, whose entire staff and membership will attend that Toronto conference, turns Congressmen into Malthusians who will view the collapse of the U.S. economy as merely "a change in lifestyle," the spread of psychotic cults as merely "a new consciousness," and the proliferation of drugs and sado-masochistic homosexuality as desirable instances of "mind-body awareness." And recently, when the Clearinghouse held a seminar on "new dimensions in science," the focus was the revival of Nazi race science undertaken by geneticist William Shockley.

"This will influence whether Shockley will be allowed to continue his work," to create a new master race through genetic engineering, explained an aide to Rep. Albert Gore, Jr., now Clearinghouse chairman.

According to Gore, one of the most popular speakers at the Clearinghouse was Marilyn Ferguson, author of The Aquarian Conspiracy. After her talk, Ferguson met privately with representatives Gore, Long, Rose, Fancell, Schroeder, and Mississippi Senator Cochran. She informed them that, as in the case of homosexual cultists, death cultists, environmentalists and witches and devil-worshippers around the country, they, too, are members of "the Aquarian Conspiracy,"

"She was very well received," says Gore.

A wide scope

The effectiveness of the Clearinghouse is indicated by the activity of Rep. Henry Reuss, now a believer in transcendental meditation who sits on the Clearinghouse's advisory board. Chairing the House Banking Committee, from which he launched his "Omnibus Banking Bill" and other legislative parts of his "Reorganization for the 1980s" package, the Wisconsin Democrat has done more damage to American industry than any other figure on Capitol Hill.

Reuss thinks of himself as facilitating "the transition from abundance to scarcity."

In mid-April, with Reuss playing a key role, the Clearinghouse began to orient strongly to determining specific legislation, rather than simply the "friendly fascist" outlook in general. Reuss is directing a series of monthly Clearinghouse dinners featuring leading corporate executives. At the first of these on April 16, Citibank chief Walter Wriston called for complete banking deregulation and elimination of the McFadden Act, which protects regional banks against take-over by out-of-state major banks. Reuss has the legislation prepared.

But the Clearinghouse's target is broader. "This year we are trying to prepare a 'Futures Agenda' for every subcommittee in Congress," explains Congressman Gore. "We are working with all the Congressional subcommittee staffs."

"There are many very aware Congressmen," declared Dr. William Whitsun, director of military and defense policy at the sister Congressional Research Service. A leading figure in futurology circles, Dr. Whitsun is currently doing well-funded research into "psychic warfare"—with the perspective that mind-waves might become an anti-ballistic missile weapon! Says Whitsun, all of the nation's lawmakers "will see the impact of the Aquarian Conspiracy on them as they meet their constituents in the 1980 election. The Clearinghouse is just the center of the effort on Capitol Hill."

The very government structure will be changed by the Clearinghouse Aquarians, say their spokesmen: Last month, the Capitol Hill group sponsored a gala dinner for Barbara Tuchman, A Distant Mirror's author. Tuchman stressed the need to rewrite the Constitution, and called for a Constitutional convention. At a Clearinghouse dinner one month earlier, Alvin Toffler declared that the Constitution was written when America was passing through its "agrarian phase." America then passed through its "industrial phase" but is now in its "informational phase." The Constitution is no longer appropriate, in the Age of Aquarius.
