

you. I have been deeply moved on hearing directly of the violence which ravages the region, and I was anguished to remember the bloody events which stole the lives of more than a half-million Colombians at the end of the 1940s. I have witnessed the self-sacrificing efforts of President Betancur to prevent this from happening again, and I pray that President Reagan has the wisdom to understand the magnitude of what is risked if he does not act in time to prevent this holocaust. What is at stake is Western civilization itself. Before it is too late, everything that smells of Henry Kissinger and his oligarchic sponsors must disappear from the political scene. Let us turn the anger which wells up in us from these injustices into creative energy and mobilize the world in favor of a new movement in defense of the inalienable rights of man.

The Third International Conference of the Schiller Institute unanimously voted to give its absolute and total support to the efforts and policies of the Contadora Group toward bringing peace to Central America.

The resolution, which was presented at the end of a discussion panel on the Central American situation Nov. 25, also condemned plans for a U.S. military intervention in the region, promoted by the faction of Henry A. Kissinger in the government of the United States.

Investigate the Trilateral Commission

On the initiative of Alejandro R. Iaccarino of Argentina, the conference of the Schiller Institute unanimously endorsed the creation of a Latin American committee to investigate the Trilateral Commission's activities, which undermine the sovereignty and prosperity of the nations of Ibero-America. The guidelines elaborated by the members of the new committee include:

"2) Each Latin American country will have its own headquarters, to the effect of compiling and establishing any and all relevant information to be remitted to the main headquarters in Argentina.

"3) In Washington, D.C., a secondary headquarters will be established, given the participation of multinational companies with their controls in the United States.

"4) Each participating member of the committee will have access by request to the central archives of information. . . .

"6) All Latin American organizations and leaders who agree with the objective of broadening the investigation of the goals and means of domination implemented by the Trilateral Commission and the International Monetary Fund will be part of this investigatory committee.

"7) The leaders of said investigatory committee should be men of renown in the national profile of each one of their respective countries.

"8) Each member will have the responsibility for keeping the mentioned investigative work private.

"9) They will have the responsibility to protect, despite any personal risks, the established mission in defense of their own country and of Latin America as a whole.

"10) Information gathered will be released to the public as it is compiled."

Form a labor alliance

Trade-union representatives attending the conference met to launch the activities of the new labor section of the Schiller Institute. Their press release reads in part:

"To be able to give our countries real alternatives, we declare our irrevocable commitment to fight to defend the inalienable rights of man. We set the following tasks:

"1) Formation of commissions by country, region and continent responsible for making sure the tasks are carried out. . . .

"4) Setting up the means to educate children and parents in order to develop the creative power of human beings.

"5) Taking inventory of the material and economic resources, and especially the human resources to achieve this plan.

"6) Convoking as soon as possible the First World Gathering of Worker Members of the Schiller Institute."

Translate works of LaRouche, Perón

The following resolution, submitted by a delegation of workers from Argentina, was adopted unanimously:

"Given the similarity of thinking and philosophies expressed by Mr. Lyndon LaRouche of the United States, and the Argentine philosophies inspired in the thinking of Gen. Juan D. Perón, made known by the Argentine delegation here, let it be resolved here:

"1) the writings and conferences of Mr. LaRouche be translated and disseminated in Spanish;

"2) similarly, the works on social justice and labor by General Perón be translated into English and into the other languages of our brother nations which have participated in this conference."
