

Rebuild U.S. Promethean Leadership To Stop Thermonuclear War

In announcing his intent to run as a Democrat for the seat currently held by House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi, in the 12th Congressional District of California, LaRouche Policy Committee member Michael Steger issued this statement Feb. 11, under the title, "A Declaration of Intent: Stop Thermonuclear War Now, Before It's Too Late!"

The one effective solution to the grave crisis confronting our nation, and mankind, immediately today, will be recognized by that small but growing number of individuals, a self-selected leadership, as in times of warfare, willing to break the chains induced by the cult of monetarism and Malthusian environmentalist depopulation, otherwise known as the cult of the tyrant Zeus. Only an immediate return to the Promethean tradition of Franklin, Washington, and Hamilton, as well as John Quincy Adams, Lincoln, Franklin Roosevelt, and the short administration of John Kennedy, will suffice, if we are to triumph over the imperial tradition of a Wall Street/London global financial empire, an empire now threatening, through neo-Nazi groups in Ukraine and Nazi-affiliated terrorist cells in Syria and beyond, a thermonuclear war of human extinction.

Consider the last 50 years: two full adult generations of Americans, who have developed, or, in most cases, degenerated, in the aftermath of President Kennedy's assassination, amid the cultural takeover by the international drug cartels and related terrorist and financial institutions. Who benefited from the Vietnam War? Who benefited from the loss of high-tech manufacturing and family farming? Who benefited from 9/11?

Over these last 50 years, our nation and European civilization more broadly, from North Africa and the eastern Mediterranean to the Nazi-run European Union and the British-directed Obama Presidency, have come to face near-total destruction in basic standards of living, production, and progress, while epidemics of disease, drug addiction, and perpetual war enforce Zeus-like calls to cull the herd of the most vulnerable members of our society, referred to in Wall Street circles as the undesirables—a policy euphemistically known as solving “overpopulation.”

On the other hand, a sleeping giant, or rather, in this case, a sleeping dragon, has awakened throughout the Asian world, with nations such as China, India, South Korea, Japan, and Russia, in their own respects, and with many imperfections, but which have committed to an upward sense of progress, including an increase in population, as well as standards of living, through development of nuclear fission and thermonuclear fusion power, water transport systems, high-speed rail development, and space exploration, including the developing of lunar resources such as helium-3 for fusion energy.

It is important to note for any American patriot, that since the American Revolution, and especially, the Presidency of Abraham Lincoln, the nations of Asia, at one time or another, had looked to the United States and the Promethean legacy of European culture, for leadership in the direction of progress and human advancement.

Now, under the sadistic Presidency of Obama, otherwise known for his Tuesday kill lists and basketball diaries, these same nations of Asia, facing the threat of destruction by European civilization's collapse, are preparing for the Hitler-like launch of thermonuclear war, as Russia and China, most specifically, confront encirclement by nuclear forces (including forward-deployed Ohio-class submarines and their massive nuclear arsenals), and by NATO advanced missile defense facilities on land as well as destroyers equipped with Aegis BMD systems in the Mediterranean and Asian-Pacific waters.

But in addition to this military nuclear encirclement, an asymmetrical encirclement, again by old Nazi- and Saudi-sponsored circles in Libya, Syria, Iraq, the Caucasus, Ukraine, and western China, threatens, at this very moment, to ignite a thermonuclear launch from every nuclear nation, which threatens the entire human race.

The danger is far greater today, than when John Kennedy addressed the United Nations in September of 1961, when he said that "every man, woman and child lives under a nuclear sword of Damocles." We must heed his warning, and those of patriots like Lyndon LaRouche with his foresight today!

The Solution to the Crisis

The first step for any patriot, as George Washington defined patriotism, as above partisan concerns, is the immediate removal of President Obama, relegating him to official post-Presidential status similar to that of the despised George W. Bush. Only with Obama's removal will the Anglo-Dutch imperial threat of thermonuclear war be stopped. However, to eliminate the active legacy of that empire itself, further steps must also be taken.

Next, the immediate reinstatement of Glass-Steagall banking separation as Federal law. This legislation, already active in Congress and throughout the nation's state legislatures, will enable and expedite the bankruptcy of the major Wall Street and international financial racket houses, otherwise known as "too big to fail" or GSIFIs, in Dodd-Frank bail-in nomenclature. Once mankind is freed from the money-laundering facilities of the Anglo-Dutch criminal enterprise, colloquially referred to as "the Wall Street of lower Manhattan" in our political discourse today, our nation will be free again to assert its sovereignty, much as we did following Lincoln's victory in the Civil War.

Projects such as Thermonuclear NAWAPA XXI, an aggressive program of land, water, and nuclear power development throughout the Western States, as promoted by President Kennedy in its earlier incarnation, will begin to restore to the United States a manufacturing and scientific cadre critical for further steps towards lunar exploration, asteroid defense, exploration, and beyond. When scientific and artistic leadership, otherwise known as the rule of Prometheans, presides over U.S. policy, the Zeus-imposed disease of poverty and hunger can be eradicated globally once and for all.

As the current drought ravages California farmland, and threatens the lives and livelihood of millions of residents in California, action should have been taken yesterday! Plans for nuclear desalination to provide water to populated coastal areas, and enable adequate water for the Central Valley, are examples of immediate policies required to alleviate the crisis, and reestablish a progress-oriented advanced industrial economy in California and throughout the nation.

The drought in California, which is spreading through to Texas and the Rio Grande Basin, into the Plains States, and down into Mexico, may be the worst drought in 500 years, the most devastating this nation and Mexico have ever seen, but, for many Americans, it is small compared to the drought of leadership in Congress, which threatens not only our lives and our livelihood, but threatens the meaning of the lives of those who have already lived.

This is why I have declared my candidacy for Congress in the 12th District in San Francisco, California.
